

Tracy Gorry
Principal Consultant
New Zealand

Tracy is a dynamic and enthusiastic professional, experienced working in both the public and private sector at senior levels. As a health and safety consultant, she has worked with Government agencies, state owned enterprises, financial institutions, and universities to drive significant safety and wellbeing improvements. With excellent communication and interpersonal skills, Tracy can influence and develop strong relationships with stakeholders at all levels of organisations.

Her 20 years' safety experience spans a range of industries including manufacturing (glass processing, engineering), distribution & warehousing, construction, civil engineering, central and local government. Tracy has worked with Government Health and Safety Lead Emerging Leaders to understand overlapping duties between multiple PCBUs as well as successfully leading a team of safety and wellbeing generalists at Inland Revenue to deliver health, safety & wellbeing, services to over 5,000 people across over 27 nationwide locations.

In addition, as a highly qualified health and safety trainer, she has over a decade's experience delivering training for the Institution of Occupational Safety and Health (IOSH) and National Examination Board of Occupational Safety and Health (NEBOSH). She holds the NEBOSH General Certificate and NEBOSH National Diploma in Occupational safety and health and is a Professional member of the New Zealand Institution of Safety Management (NZISM).